

Main Findings

Survey results from this study suggest businesses in the C&D sector in rural N. Ayrshire report a positive level of CE readiness in terms of technology, organisation awareness and environmental practice.

However, interviews with participating organisations indicated that they are less 'CE ready' and that there are emerging issues and barriers slowing transition to CE Readiness (Fig. 1).

In relation to CE behaviours there were areas for improvement with regards 'supporting nature', but also in some aspects of 'reducing pollution and waste', and in the 'circulation of products' and sustainable purchasing.

Results suggest that larger organisations are more CE ready than small and micro-businesses
